The Rev It Up Reading Revolution Podcast Gets People Talking About Their Reading Skills

Wallingford, CT — June 23, 2015 — Rev It Up Reading has announced the launch of a new podcast, The Rev It Up Reading Revolution. This unique podcast is hosted by Abby Marks Beale, an author, speaker and trainer with more than 25 years of experience in teaching developmental reading skills. She currently offers an online reading course that focuses on smart reading strategies that build competence and confidence using speed, concentration, comprehension and retention methods.

The Rev It Up Reading Revolution podcast offers tips and advice on how to improve one's reading skills, how to manage any reading workload and ultimately how to make reading a more enjoyable and satisfying experience. It is geared toward anyone who would like to become a smarter and more confident reader, particularly high school and college students, educators and busy professionals.

"I am very excited about starting a weekly podcast on iTunes called Rev It Up Reading Revolution! It's a passion and mission of mine to help people become the best reader's they can be," said Marks Beale. "I want to get people talking about their reading abilities and hope this podcast will help spark this important revolution."

The Rev It Up Reading Revolution podcast is available to listeners for free on iTunes and Stitcher Radio. Once subscribed to it, new installments are automatically downloaded to your playlist. Each weekly episode will be 5 to 10 minutes, except for the occasional interview which will be 30-45 minutes in length. Fans of the podcast can contact Abby Marks Beale to provide feedback and ideas for the podcast.
